The strange world of your dreams

There are many different theories about dreams and how they work; however, what is certain is that the science of dreams is not exact. In ancient times, people believed that when we dreamt we entered another world which was real. As the fields of science and medicine became more advanced, different theories started to come out. Some scientists believe that dreams are just verbal, visual and emotional stimuli with no apparent meaning. However, others believe that dreams are important for our mental well-being. The leading psychiatrist, Carl Jung thought that analysing our dreams provides us with a way to think more deeply about our lives and solve problems.

For centuries, people have believed that dreams have a deeper meaning. For example, many of us dream that we are falling and suddenly we wake up. Experts say this dream means we are feeling anxious and insecure or we feel we have failed in achieving a goal. Another popular dream is that of being chased; this means we are trying to escape our problems. If you see yourself in a dream trying to run but your legs don't take you anywhere, then you could be trying to do too many things at the same time. Also, dreams about losing our teeth are believed to show that we are worried about our physical appearance.

There has been a lot of research done into controlling dreams and this has led to the term lucid dreaming. Lucid dreaming happens when you are aware that you are dreaming and are able to control what happens in your dream. This is an amazing skill but it is also extremely difficult to do and not many people are able to learn it. Lucid dreaming can be a fun way to experience the strange world of your dreams but it is also believed to help personal development and improve your problem solving skills. 18

Some people are able to see future events through their dreams. There is the case of the man who dreamt that he took his son on a camping trip and his son died near a lake. Some time after he had had the dream, the man and his son were invited on a camping trip. Then, at a certain time during the trip, the man remembered his dream and noticed that everything was the same as in his dream; the boy was standing near a lake looking down at pebbles. The man quickly grabbed his son and took him to safety.

There is still a lot of research taking place into dreams, and it will be some time before we are able to really understand the strange dream world that we enter every night. Dreams allow us to experience things that would not be possible in real life, and by analysing our dreams we can learn more about ourselves.

 - a. you are worried about the way you look.
 - b. you are doing too many things.

LISTENING TRANSCRIPT

Interviewer: Good evening and welcome to this edition of That's Strange. Today on the programme I have Dr Ian Roberts talking about a phenomenon known as crop circles. Welcome, Dr Roberts.

Dr Roberts: Thank you.

Interviewer: So Dr Roberts, for those of us who don't know, tell us, what is a crop circle?

Dr Roberts: A crop circle is a large pattern formed by flattening crops such as wheat or barley.

Interviewer: And what is so special about crop circles?

Dr Roberts: There's a lot of controversy surrounding crop circles. Many of your listeners might have seen the film Signs with Mel Gibson in which intelligent aliens are responsible for elaborate crop circles that suddenly appear all over the world. Some people believe that this idea is not that far from the truth because many crop circles are enormous complex geometric formations that are created overnight and it's difficult to believe that humans could create them.

Interviewer: Is there any proof that they are created by, let's say, mysterious forces?

Dr Roberts: Well, there has been some video footage showing small bright balls of light in and around the crop circles. Some of these bright lights have been filmed during the day. As to whether there is a connection between these lights and crop circle creation we still don't know. Scientists have analysed the wheat from crop circles to find out if it has any unusual features. They discovered that the plants had been heated rapidly to very high temperatures. This indicated that large bursts of energy were used to create the crop circles.

Interviewer: And do you think it is possible that humans are creating them?

Dr Roberts: Yes, of course it is possible. An experiment has been done with a team of artists who were able to create some very complex circles by using wooden planks to flatten the crops. However, the more complex patterns would require a great amount of planning and skill. There is a group of crop circle artists but they usually don't take responsibility for specific circles. This helps to add to the air of mystery surrounding the circles. Although I think it is most likely that humans do create them, one can never be absolutely certain. There is not enough research into crop circles to really understand how they are formed.

Interviewer: I see... and where are these circles usually found?

Dr Roberts: Mainly in Southern England. However, there have been crop circles found all over the world. On my website, you can see some recent photographs which I took of crop circles in America and there is a particularly beautiful one in Switzerland.

Interviewer: I'll give out those details for you at the end of the show...Can you tell us how long these crop circles have been around?

Dr Roberts: Well, some of the earliest reports were in 17th century England but the phenomenon didn't really attract the public's attention till the 1980s...(fade out)
